Landing Day Magnificently Honored by the Citizens of New York and Brooklyn.

Monster Parade of the Military Companies and the Commercial Industries.

Beautiful Allegorical Cars, Myriads of Spectators, Unbounded Enthusiasm.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—This is the third and great day of the Columbian celebration. It is "Landing Day," and for it had been reserved the parade of the military. While perhaps not the biggest parade of its kind, in fact hardly as large as that of 1889, yet it was an imposing display of the defenders of the country. The troops began to assemble as early as 8 o'clock in the thoroughfares concentrating on the Battery. So complete had been the arrangements that everything moved like clock-work, and promptly at 10 o'clock General Martin G. MacMahon, grand marshal of the day, was enabled to give the word of command for the moving of the troops.

The United States troops had the right of the line in the following order: Band and three batteries of the Second Artillery, and Light Battery B, Fourth Artillery from Fort Adams, R.I. Two batteries of the Second Artillery from Fort Schuyler. Band, Light Battery K, and three batteries of the First Artillery from Fort Hamilton. Three batteries of the First Artillery from Fort Wadsworth. Two batteries of the First Artillery from Fort Columbus (Governor's Island.) One company Sixth Infantry from Fort Wood (Bedloe's Island.) Band and six companies Ninth Infantry from Madison Barracks, Sackett's Harbor, N.Y. One company Ninth Infantry from Fort Ontario. One company Ninth Infantry from Plattsburg Barracks. Two companies Twenty-first Infantry from Fort Niagara. One company Twenty-first Infantry from Fort Porter.

This completed the first division. In the second division were the militia of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and Rhode Island, to a total of over twenty-five thousand. The third division comprised five thousand members of the Grand Army of the Republic, five thousand Exempt Firemen, and one thousand letter carriers. The New York fire department turned out in force, two brigades, or twenty-seven companies strong with engines and trucks and everything else pertaining to the department except fireboats. In the next division was the fire patrol, delegations of firemen from Brooklyn and Baltimore, three thousand uniformed men from the Italian societies, one thousand Irish Volunteers, several detachments of the Knights of Pythias and Foresters, members of German, French, Bohemian Polish and Hungarian societies in uniform to a total of over six thousand. A large contingent of the Sons of Veterans brought up the rear of the parade.

Altogether it was calculated by Gen. Anson G. McCook, senior aide to the Grand Marshal, that fully eighty thousand people were in line.

The line of march was up Broadway to Fourth, to Washington Square, to Fifth avenue to Fourteenth street, to Union Square, to Fourth avenue, to Seventeenth street, to Fifth avenue and thence to Forty-seventh street. At Madison Square the parade was reviewed by Vice-President Morton, and several hundred officials of this and other cities as far west as Chicago. There were even more spectators on the street than yesterday, and the various divisions were given an enthusiastic reception from the start of the route to the finish.

At 5 o'clock this afternoon the magnificent statue of Columbus recently erected in Central Park as the outcome of a movement started by the Italian residents of the city will be formally dedicated with imposing ceremonies. But the crowning feature of the celebration will commence as soon as night has fallen and will be the grand civic pageant, expected to exceed in interest any exhibition of the kind at the Mardi Gras festival at New Orleans or any other place. Every effort has been put forward to outdo all the efforts of Rex or the Veiled Prophet, and the streets will be decorated and illuminated as they have never been before. A start will be made from the Battery at 6 o'clock in the following order:

Platoon of mounted police. Body of cycling clubs with lanterns. Mounted cavaliers. Twelve heralds bearing banners. Band. Grand Marshal John J. Garnett and staff. Car of Fame. Group of forty Mexican Indians. Car of Prehistoric America. Car of Toltec Sun Worshippers. Cavalcade of fifty Spanish grandees. Float—"Homage to Columbus." Mounted group—the Spanish court. The Santa Maria. Cavalcade of American discoverers. Car of Liberty. Group of Puritan colonists. Group—William Penn and the Indians. Band. George Washington and his staff. Soldiers of the Continental army. Tribes of Indians. Float—"The Capitol." Marine cadets. Fifteen mounted marshals. Float—"The Press." Band. Float—"Poetry and Romance." Float—"Car of Music." Band. Car of Science. Float—"Supremacy of American Women." Band. Float—"The United Oceans." Columbus' Car of State. Horsemen bearing the banner of Electra. Twenty winged amazons on horseback. Band. Car of Electra. Five thousand red men. The five thousand bicyclists will come from the towns about here, and each will carry a lantern or colored light. They will be followed by twelve gorgeously costumed cavalier on white horses decked with plumes. Each will carry a banner proclaiming the triumph of all America. The horses will have trappings made of the national colors.

Grand Marshal Garnett will be accompanied by a staff of twenty-five or more mounted aides, and will be followed by the first float, the car of Fame. This will represent the winged deity, Fame, flying over the eastern hemisphere to announce to all the nations of the earth the advent of this celebration.

Europe is pictured with a bull, Africa with tigers and Australia with kangaroos. Near the float will be a group representing the primeval rock dwellers.

The prehistoric car represents a huge cave surrounded by early inhabitants of this continent, fighting with giant turtles, bears and snakes. A group of Indians walk about the car.

The Toltec sun worshippers are seen in the act of sacrificing a victim at the foot of a smoking pyramid, while near burning altars of incense Aztec warriors worship the genius of the sun. The float representing homage to Columbus shows a statue of the great discoverer as the pioneer of civilization. He is greeted by History and supported by Fame. At the foot of the car sits America with Spain and Italy on either hand. The cavalcade representing the Spanish court shows Queen Isabella riding under a canopy borne by four knights in full armor. She is followed by lords and ladies of Iberia. The model of Columbus' caraval is drawn by eight Spanish sailors, followed by Americus Vespuccius, Cortez, Pizarro, Ponce de Leon, and other early explorers, on horseback.

The car of Liberty shows the statue of Liberty enlightening the world, with figures grouped at her feet. Representatives of various nations stand about as representatives of the early colonizers of America. At the front of the car sits Justice, supported by Equality and Fraternity, and at the rear are Peace, Goodwill and Hospitality. The Puritan colonists are grouped around John Alden and Priscilla, both riding the same horse, and are followed by William Penn and mounted Indians.

A model of the Capitol at Washington, lighted within and without, appears on the next float. It is surrounded by twenty-two daughters of veterans bearing shields, on which are the arms of the forty-four states of the Union. The float is guarded by a corps of veterans of the army and navy, and is escorted by the Osborne Marine Cadets and the Junior Naval reserves.

The Press is represented by a beautiful young woman, dressed in black, coming out of an ink bottle. She holds a weather vane in her hand and is surrounded by pens. Behind her are printers at work on a press, who will distribute official programmes along the line of march. On the sides of the float are allegorical representations of the New York newspapers with the inscription "The pen is mightier than the sword."

Poetry and romance are represented by a flying Pegasus, held at the bridle by Longfellow's youth, who through an Alpine village passed bearing a banner inscribed Excelsior. The figure head of the float is a swan with outstretched wings. Behind the Pegasus is a doorway on top of which Poe's raven sits on a bust of Pallas. Busts of the great American writers are placed on the sides of the car.

On the float representing the supremacy of the American woman, a fair maiden sits in a rocking chair on top of a globe. Cupids are at her feet holding out hearts and garlands to sweet girl graduates. Blue stockings are shown in the act of refusing coronets and money bags, while the flags of the world fall at their feet. At the front of the car a young woman is surrendering the latchkey and the checkbook to her lord, while at the rear a huge cigarette bears the inscription "Man Must Go." The sides of the car bear the legend "Ubi gemina ubinon?" A cupid swings on a pair of suspenders at one side of the float.

The other floats have no particular features of attention with the exception of the Car of Electra, which it is intended shall be the finest in the parade. It represents a ship propelled by oars in the hands of the presidents of the United States. The bust of Washington is amidships, and Columbia is at the helm steering the ship of state to a haven of safety. The car is labelled, "The hydra of lightning controlled by the genius of Edison," and the inscription is carried out by a huge monster's head filled with electric lights. A winged woman reins in the monster by lines of miniature electric lights. Thirty girls in metallic costumes stand on a revolving disk and reflect the lights on the car. In the middle of this group is a globe with the latitudinal and longitudinal lines marked by electric lights. There will be 3000 lights on this car, which is 30 feet long, and drawn by 10 horses.

All the other floats will also be lighted by electricity. This is accomplished by each car carrying a storage battery. From these batteries wires will extend to incandescent lights fixed on reflectors. Men walking at the sides of the floats will carry reflectors like shields on their arms and thus illuminate the whole line of march. The floats are about twenty feet in length, and each is to be drawn by eight horses. The horses will wear gorgeous trappings and plumes. They will be led by grooms.

The cost of the pageant will be $80,000. The figures on the cars are represented by men and women hired to take the parts. There will be 750 persons in costume and 150 grooms to lead the 300 horses. Behind the car of Electra will come 5000 red men in costume. Most of these will be on foot, but the sachems, sagamores and chieftains will ride horses. When the parade is over the city will be illuminated and there will be firework displays in all the parks.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Mr. McKee said to-night that there was no change Mrs. Harrison's condition. To-day was spent pretty much as last night. Mrs. Harrison has rested at intervals throughout the day, at about the same intervals as during the night, dosing for an hour or so; after each spell of rest there was less nervousness. There is no question that Mrs. Harrison has perceptibly declined since Sunday. Everything is being done to keep up her strength. Medicines are, of course, no longer any use, and the battle against the disease will only end when it is not possible to give further nourishment. This afternoon a new supply of malt extract was ordered for the to the White House, and it is given alternately with the other forms of liquid nourishment that she is now able to take. The president spent most of the day in the sick room, and late this afternoon drove out to the Soldiers Home to bring home his grandchildren, who were sent there to spend the day.

With Religious Honors.

QUEBEC, Oct. 12.—Discovery Day was observed here to-day by the celebration of pontifical high mass in the Basilica, Cardinal Tascherean being the celebrant. On Sunday next, in accordance with the desire of the Cardinal, there will be special services in every church of the Archdiocese.

OTTAWA OCCURRENCES.

Canada no Place for Traitors—The Villiers Suspension Case.

OTTAWA, Oct. 12.—General Herbert, seen by your correspondent to-day, denies the rumor that he was opposed to the dismissal of Lieutenant McDonald, Toronto. He agreed with the Minister of Militia that this was no place for people who talked treason.

As to the suspension of Villiers, Deputy Adjutant-General at Winnipeg, General Herbert said that there was good reason for his suspension. He (Herbert) was not acting on the report of any busybody. He had information before him which warranted Villiers' suspension.

It is rumored here that the Department of Agriculture will be abolished and divided up among the other departments.

All the Poles Up and Thirty-six Miles of Wire Strung—Dull Times at Comox.

Mr. T. D. Conway, who has been superintending the construction of the Comox telegraph line, for the Dominion Government, arrived in the city last night. The line is to be 76 miles long. All the poles for the line are up and 36 miles of wire strung. Work has been stopped for the present on account of trouble with the contractor. The matter has been referred to the officials at Ottawa, and nothing will be done until an answer has been received.

"Comox," said Mr. Conway, "is very quiet at present. The Union mines have been closed, and the absence of the miners makes things very dull. Chemainus is in the same fix. The saw mill there has been closed for the winter and the workmen have all come to the city."

VERY NEATLY NABBED.

Contraband Opium From Nanaimo Seized by Customs Officers.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 11.—Customs officers seized 595 five tael tins of prepared opium, worth $8000, on the ship Big Bonanza, on her arrival from Nanaimo yesterday, with a cargo of coal. Collector Phelps has known for nearly three weeks that a large quantity of opium would be shipped to this point on the Big Bonanza. Yesterday when the vessel entered the Heads, inspectors were placed on board the in-coming ship by the revenue steamer Hartley, and a diligent search of the vessel began. Every nook and corner of the vessel received attention, and late in the afternoon the hiding place of the drug was discovered. In the peak of the forward hold, two barrels supposed to contain mess beef were found. On knocking off the barrel heads, instead of ship supplies, 595 tins of prepared opium came to light. The owner of the drug is unknown.

SCHOONER MAGGIE MAC.

She Has Not Been Heard From Since Leaving the West Coast Last March.

A Faint Hope That She Will Return to Port all Right—The Names of Her Crew.

There is not a sealer in Victoria who would not give a good deal to see the schooner Maggie Mac return home. She is one of the three sealers still out, but unlike the other two she has not been heard of for several months. It has been rumored at different times that she had been spoken, but not once has anything definite been heard of her. In spite of this some think that Capt. Dodd will be back to port with his schooner, as before leaving he was very reticent as to where he was going. The last news from the Maggie Mac was received in this city on the 18th of March, when R. P. Rithet & Co., received a letter from Capt. Dodd, dated from Clayoquot.

Since then wreckage has been picked up along the coast, but none of it was ever identified as belonging to the Maggie Mac. To-day a clip hook was received by Messrs. R. P. Rithet & Co. from Mr. Cunnicgham of Port Essington. It was found amongst a lot of wreckage sold by Indians to Mr. Cunningham. Of course there was nothing to show that it belonged to the Maggie Mac.

The long overdue schooner is owned by a company, of which the principal shareholders are, Captain Dodd, her master; R. P. Rithet & Co., Limited; W. Bragg, and Brown Bros. She is fully insured.

A proclamation has just been issued by the Lieut.-Governor of Quebec, ordering that no licensee shall cut cedar for shingles in the province unless it is to be manufactured within the province. The Dreaney's corner outrage, a rape case, was tried at the London assizes. The crime was committed in the early part of the year, and was of a most dastardly character. An attempt was made by friends of the prisoners some time ago to get the victims, the McGeary sisters, out of the country and hush the matter up, but the plan was frustrated. Sentence was passed as follows: David Moore, ten years; Thomas Lee, ten years; James Armstrong, five years; George Lee, three years.

A lady named Shepherd hired the Brockville town hall to deliver a lecture against Roman Catholicism, but the property committee, when it learned the nature of the subject, withdrew the permission. The Orangemen are getting up an impromptu demonstration to express their indignation over the affair.

Many Manitobans who met his lordship Bishop Bompas in the early days, and who have heard from time to time of his sufferings and devotion to his work, will be glad to learn that he has formed a favorable impression of his new diocese of Selkirk, which comprises all that portion of Canada west of the Rocky mountains and north of the province of British Columbia. He has established temporarily the seat of his episcopal see at the ramparts of the Porcupine river, a few miles from the international boundary, and left there to visit the miners of the upper Yukon early this spring. His lordship finds that the efforts of the American Fur company, through their steamers on the Yukon, to supply the upper parts of the river, give an opportunity of receiving eight or ten mails during the summer, which he considers a great advance upon the two mails a year which it was only possible to receive in the diocese of Mackenzie river.—Winnipeg Free Press.

Tennyson's Funeral.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—In response to a request from Hallam Tennyson, Lord Salisbury will be a pall-bearer at the funeral of Lord Tennyson to-morrow. The applications for tickets of admission to that service far surpass anything experienced at the time of the Queen's Jubilee, and an immense amount of labor has been entailed upon the persons having in charge the allotment of places. Thousands of friends and admirers of the dead poet will be unable to get inside of the doors. Seats have been given to several survivers of Balaclava, who wish to pay a last tribute of honor to the author of the "Charge of the Light Brigade." All the boys of the Gordon Home, in which Tennyson was deeply interested, will be admitted and will be drawn up in double line in the nave.

Tennyson's body reached the Waterloo station at 8:55 o'clock this evening. The coffin, covered with wreaths, was placed in a hearse and taken to St. Faith's Chapel, Westminster Abbey. Lady Tennyson and Hallam Tennyson followed in a carriage. The coffin was then placed in the chapel, and a Union Jack was then thrown over it. After the offering of a simple prayer by Canon Duckworth, the little group of friends who gathered at the chapel to receive the body dispersed. The Queen's message of sympathy to Hallam Tennyson says: "I am most truly grieved that the great and kind poet has left the world. He was ever so kind to me and so full of sympathy. I feel so deeply for your dear mother and yours if, his devoted son."

Crespo Provisional President.

LA GUAYRA, Venezuela, Oct. 11.—General Joaquin Crespo was accorded a most enthusiastic reception upon his triumphal entry into Caracas yesterday. The city was brilliantly illuminated in his honor, and the streets were crowded with wildly cheering multitudes. As soon as Crespo reached the congress building he summoned his military and political leaders. The result was the proclamation of Crespo as provisional president of the republic to hold office until the regularly elected congressmen shall have time to meet again and proceed to the election of a constitutional successor to ex-President Riarmunda Palacio. The veteran promptly issued a pronunciamento naming the members of his provisional cabinet. They are as follows: Minister of Foreign Affairs, Pedro Esquiel Rogas; Minister of Interior, Leon Colina; Minister of Finance, Senor Pietri; Minister of War, Gozman Alvarez; Chief of Police, General Victor Rodriguez; Chief of Telegraphs, Leopoldo Baptisto; Minister of Public Works, M. Tabeur; Minister of Instruction, Silvia Gaudolphy; General in Chief, Ramon Guerra; Governor of Caracas, Senor Andraue. Villegas Pulido and his ministers managed to get on a vessel bound for Martinique and will proceed to France to join Palacio.

The Land of Unrest.

PARIS, Oct 11.—The situation in France is cloudy. It is probable that the ministry may be overthrown about the 20th inst. The cause of the difficulty is its position in the Carmaux strike trouble, both workmen and employers having equal reason to complain. The ministry may also be overthrown because of the treaty of commerce. The Swiss deputies are enraged, and the protectionists reject the treaty. The political interests of France demand this treaty, but the ministry may be overthrown upon the Carmaux question rather than upon a question of foreign policy. There is a menace just as great in the Panama canal scandal, in which politicians, journalists and the deputies are said to be gravely involved. The rumor of an interview between the three emperors is absolutely false. There is no change in Franco-Russian politics. The expedition to Dahomey will, it seems, have accomplished its end next week. The success of France is beyond doubt. The excitement caused by the discovery that the Germans have been sending munitions of war to Dahomey is great.

"The Land is the People's."

LONDON, Oct. 11.—It is understood that the Dowager Duchess of Sutherland will receive the rentals of the Florida estates, estimated at $250,000 to $300,000. The late duke's will is to be proved shortly. It will dispose of an enormous property. The present duke inherits nearly a million and a half. His property is mostly in Scotland, of which the Sutherlands own the fifteenth part. About 150,000 acres in Ross-shire pass now from the duke to his younger brother, the Earl of Cromarty. The trouble between the Dowager Duchess and the new duke concerning Tittensor House and the railway stocks is no nearer settlement than a week ago, and probably will be brought into the courts shortly.

Rewarding the Horse Killers.

JACK THE RIPPER.

A Piece of Work that Seems to Indicate the Fiend's Presence.

GLASGOW, Oct. 11.—The most horrible murder in the criminal history of this city was committed last night at the West Lodge, a villa on the Albert road, in Pollockshields, on the southern outskirts of Glasgow. A woman, still unidentified, was mutilated after the method of "Jack-the-Ripper," was disembowelled, and the pieces of her body buried in the villa garden. McEwan, the gardener, has disappeared. West Lodge is one of the finest suburbs of Glasgow, and is surrounded by a garden some 125 feet deep on every side. McEwan, with the assistant gardener, McDougall, lived in separate houses, and when not busy at the villa did odd jobs in the neighborhood. He is a native of County Down, Ireland, is about 30 years of age, and although occasionally a heavy drinker, has borne a good reputation. He is a man of great physical strength.

At 6 o'clock this morning McDougall knocked at McEwan's doors to wake him, as he has done for the last six years. McEwan responded with unusual promptness, "All right, Tom, I won't get up yet; I am tired." McDougall went away and worked in the garden until 9 o'clock, when he returned to arouse McEwan. His knocks were not answered, and he forced open the door. He found the walls, ceiling, furniture and floor spattered profusely with blood. The clothes on the two beds were scattered over the floor and were sprinkled with blood. Red finger marks streaked the side of the bed and the door. There was not a piece of furniture or an article of clothing which was not blood-stained. McDougall ran to the police station and gave the alarm, and officers went at once to West Lodge.

From the room they followed a bloody trail to four fresh mounds in the flower garden. In a bed where a plant had been removed, about two feet below the surface, they found the mutilated hand and disjointed arm of a woman. In another similar bed they uncovered the trunk. It was absolutely devoid of all internal organs. Beside the trunk was the woman's left arm, also unjointed. In another flower bed they found the missing organs and the legs, unjointed, as were the arms. The trail led from this last bed to a tool house. There, under a pile of rubbish and tools, was a biscuit box containing a fragment of a large saw, the teeth still clotted with flesh and blood and several smaller pieces of the woman's body. The police say that the box was used by McEwan in transferring the limbs and organs from his room to the garden. A search of McEwan's room revealed several razors apparently unused for some time and an axe recently washed, but still showing slight blood stains. McDougall was unable to give any information as to McEwan or the disposition of the body, for he was working at the time on the opposite side of the house, as was shown by the fresh turned earth. He believes that when he knocked at 6 o'clock, McEwan was carving up the body, as McEwan's voice indicated that he was wide awake.

As far as can be judged from the mutilated remains of the body, McEwan's victim was robust, of medium height, and about thirty or thirty-five years of age. Her clothing was well made and of good material. McEwan probably took her to the house after 6 o'clock, for at that time McDougall called on him and found him alone. This is the last time McEwan was seen by anybody near West Lodge. How and when McEwan induced the woman to enter the house with him, and what was his motive in the murder, are mysterious. It was reported immediately after the news of the murder that McEwan was "Jack-the-Ripper," and that at the time of the "Ripper" murders he was absent from Glasgow, but these reports are discredited. The police say that McEwan had but little money, and will soon be captured. The woman's body has been put together as well as as possible, and now lies at the morgue awaiting identification.

A Story of a Phantom Feast That Outdoes All Tales of Haunted Houses.

Apropos of the stories of haunted houses and the doings of the "societies for psychical research" at home and abroad, a friend sends me a story for the authenticity of which he vouches. As for myself, dear reader, I vouch for nothing in this connection.

"There is a gentleman," says my correspondent, "who visits New York regularly once in every three years, and who, although a very quiet man, excites a great deal of interest on account of some peculiar characteristics and circumstances that always attend him.

"His personal appearance is striking—rather tall, with head firmly set on broad shoulders; iron gray hair brushed back from a full, white forehead; well cut features and dark eyes with a pointed inward expression that is indescribable. He takes rooms at one of our leading hotels and remains three days at a time, never more nor less.

"The first day is spent in giving directions for a banquet to be spread in his private parlor, and he is particular to the minutest detail. The second day he superintends everything, and his face has an anxious look. At about 4 o'clock in the afternoon he retires to his dressing room after giving a last injunction to the servants to be in attendance at the appointed time.

"The hour approaches; the table is resplendent with silver, crystal and flowers; the servants stand expectantly waiting, yet no guests have arrived.

BURIES IT IN THE BREAST OF A BEAUTIFUL GIRL.

"At last the doors are thrown open and the strange gentleman enters, his face flushed and head bent, as if listening to some remark addressed to him by some one walking by his side.

"With polite gesture he indicates seats to numerous invited guests, and at last seats himself at the head of the table. With a motion to the astonished servants he signifies his wish to have the covers removed and the different courses served.

"All is profound silence, and yet the host, though uttering not a sound, appears to be engaged in earnest conversation with the guests, who, to him at least, are very apparent. He frequently bows and smiles toward different parts of the table.

"Finally the wine is poured, every glass is filled, and as this is done the host at the phantom banquet rises, holding his glass high above his head. Instantly every chair appears to fill with lovely women and courtly men. Sparkling eyes look love to eyes that speak again, and rosy lips seem ready to part with rippling laughter.

"Suddenly the ladies disappear, vanishing into thin air before the amazed gaze of the trembling servants, and the gentlemen remain.

"Conversation seems to be renewed, though no sound is uttered, when suddenly the gaze of all is riveted on two young men who appear to be very angry. They both rise excitedly; one draws a dagger, and with a quick, descending motion buries it in the breast of a beautiful girl, who has rushed in and thrown herself in front of the intended victim.

"Jewels gleamed on her round white throat and amid the burnished gold of her hair, while her lifeblood, like a crimson thread, slowly trickles to the floor over the snowy folds of her dress.

"Every face is filled with an expression of horror, and with a cry of agony the host falls back in his chair insensible, and as he falls the guests fade away and vanish into thin air.

"Nearly all the servants have long since fled in fright, but a few, allowing their curiosity to overcome their fear, have remained to the end. These now summon assistance, and the strange gentleman is carried to his bed.

"For a long time all means of resuscitating him fail, but at last he opens his eyes and moans, 'Oh, is it all over?' Then he falls into a deep slumber and so remains till the afternoon of the third day. Immediately after this he makes his appearance at the hotel office calm and collected, calls for his bill, settles it without any question, orders a carriage and is driven to the Grand Central depot, and then we lose sight of him until three years roll over our heads, when we feel sure that he will visit us again.

"The circumstances here related can be corroborated by a number of people if you care to make an investigation of this case. I know you are inclined to laugh at such things, but you should bear in mind the saying of Hamlet—that there are more things in heaven and earth than are dreamed of in our philosophy.

"Dr. G——, whom you well know and I am sure respect as an honest, able and clear headed man, has been a witness to these strange proceedings, and he has a theory to offer in explanation, and though it may strike you as chimerical it may be right after all.

"In this case he thinks the gentleman in question at one time in his early life passed through just such a scene as has been described, and that probably the young lady was his sweetheart. The dreadful shock her loss produced acted in a peculiar way upon his brain.

"It must take three years for some unknown force to work within him to the point when he feels compelled, perhaps as a sort of relief, to repeat as far as possible the event.

"When the wine appears this minor force must be reaching to culmination, and the vision so intensely vivid to the mind is projected into or upon the atmosphere, like a reflection in the glass, so that it becomes visible to all who may be present.

"When he falls the force is expended and the phantasmagoria disappears. The prolonged insensibility, followed by a deep sleep, is an effort of nature to repair exhaustion and restore equilibrium."

A Ludicrous Interruption.

One of our western dioceses is presided over by a bishop distinguished for his eloquence and earnestness. It is his habit as he approaches the end of a sermon to close his manuscript and finish his discourse by an extemporaneous appeal to the consciences of his hearers.

On the occasion of one of his visits to a pioneer settlement in his jurisdiction he conducted service in a school house, which stood upon a beautiful uninclosed common, on which ranged at will the cattle of the neighborhood.

It was a beautiful Sunday afternoon in June, warm but breezy, and by no means oppressive. The neat white school house was well filled with an attentive audience, and all the windows—which reached nearly to the ground—were raised in order to admit a free circulation of air. Among the cattle that had collected on the shady side of the school house was a rough looking but venerable and sober donkey.

The donkey remained quiet and contented near one of the side windows, beside the bishop, during the reading of the service.

The bishop ended his discourse and preached an impressive sermon, and as was his habit before entering upon a particular exhortation he closed his manuscript. Looking attentively around his congregation and waiting for an instant until there was perfect silence, he said in a deep, low and impressive tone:

"And now, beloved, what think you of these things?"

The words were scarcely out of his mouth when the donkey thrust his head through the open window and gave one of those horrid, terrible, unearthly screams that no creature but one of his kind can give, and of which no words can convey an adequate idea.

The bishop, though a man of coolness, was very much flurried. His face turned all colors and he could not utter a word, while the congregation stuffed their prayer books, handkerchiefs and hands into their mouths in order to keep back a universal exhibition of laughter.

The boys and girls laughed outright. Very soon, however, perfect silence prevailed again and the bishop, biting his lips, commenced in a solemn and deep tone:

"I say, my brethren, what think you of these things?"

Once more, at the very instant, came the terrible deafening screech of the melancholy looking beast, as if in answer to the bishop's earnest question. This was too much. In less than a minute the sermon, benediction and all was ended, the building was emptied and the people, convulsed with laughter, were making their way homeward.

Caste in India.

If the 350,000,000 of Hindoos were united in religion, caste and language they would be the most powerful nation in the world, and England, instead of keeping them in subjection with a handful of civil and military officers, could not make a landing in Hindoostan with all her combined forces.

While visiting Delhi in 1869 I had an opportunity of seeing for myself the all powerful influence of caste, and for the first time realized the disintegrating force of this inhuman superstition.

It should be known that it is regarded as a degradation for a member of one caste to associate in any way with a member of another caste, particularly if that caste be regarded as lower. A Brahmin, or priest it would seem, while traveling through an arid stretch of country near Delhi met a low caste woman carrying on her head an earthen pitcher filled with water.

As it would be a degradation to drink from the vessel in such hands, and he was very thirsty, he compromised by scooping out a hole in the earth. Into this the woman poured some water, and the Brahmin got down on his hands and knees and drank.

While the man was in this position, with the woman bending over him, he was discovered by a number of people of his own class. He was regarded by his associates as defiled, and he was at once put on trial before a Brahminical tribunal in the city.

The trial lasted for four days and the man was declared guiltless, yet he had to undergo a month's purification before he was restored to his caste.

Bringing It Home.

Dr. Talmage recently preached a powerful and effective sermon on the duty of "largeness in beneficence" and the necessity of giving often, giving promptly and giving liberally.

As a result of this the contribution boxes that day were fuller than usual.

I was preceded out of the church by two well dressed, perhaps overdressed, women of middle age or beyond it, though their diamond earrings showed that they still considered themselves attractive and sweet to the feminine if not the masculine eye.

"My, what a fine sermon that was the doctor gave us this morning," said one.

"Yes, it was just splendid," said the other. "It made me feel a mighty sight broader and more liberal than I was when I came to church this morning," said the other.

"We don't do nigh as much as we should," said the first speaker, and she raised her umbrella, for it was sprinkling.

"Oh, my, no! Not near so much as we should. Do you know, Mrs. Willis, what I was thinking of during that sermon?"

"Yes; my daughter wrote me from the seashore yesterday for a plain white party dress, but since hearing that sermon on giving I've made up my mind to send her a silk one."

Knew About "Dividin."

A country bumpkin, asked to give his vote for a Conservative candidate in the Midlands, replied that he would not. Asked why, he said, "Because they chaps be well enough paid already." Then it was explained to Hodge that members of parliament were not paid for their services, and at last he replied knowingly: "Don't ee tell me. I believes my eyes, and when I zees in t' paper as they divides a'most ev'ry night I knows they be dividin summat."—Paris American Register.

Are You "In the Swim?"

It is said: "You may as well be out of the world as out of the fashion."

In the West End of London, Eng., the fashionable quarter, it is not now considered "the proper thing" to wear RUBBER waterproofs.

Among the "smart" set it is looked upon as "bad form," and as much out of place for a man to wear a RUBBER waterproof as for a woman to wear a bustle.

When a new article suddenly springs into favor and is almost universally adopted, you may be sure it must possess extraordinary merit. "MELISSA" COATS seem to meet every requirement of Health, Comfort and Fashion, and gratify every taste. They are produced in an infinite variety of textures, patterns and styles. To any intelligent person the mere mention of the many advantages of "MELISSA" RAINPROOF garments over the old Rubber article is sufficient.

No dampness, no chills, no odor, no pulling apart at the seams. A Rainproof and Overcoat combined, with all the advantages of both.

Not on the Cards.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—It had been announced that the display of fireworks on the Brooklyn bridge last night would last for at least two hours, but about nine o'clock, after it had been in progress about half an hour, the whole bridge was suddenly illuminated by what appeared to be a chaotic display, but which was very dazzling and brilliant. When it ceased after a few moments, the expectant crowd waited a long time in vain for a renewal of the display, but eventually dispersed. It has since been learned that the curtailment of the display was entirely unintentional, and due to an accident to a bomb, which in some manner ignited all the prepared fireworks and set them off all together. The workmen, guards and a few reporters who were on the bridge had to run for some distance through the fiery display to avoid injury. The woodwork of the bridge caught fire in several places, but was extinguished without difficulty.

CITY HALL, Victoria, Oct. 5, 1892.

GENTLEMEN—We, the undersigned, having received a copy of a resolution passed by the Council on the 28th of September, re Broad street extension across lot 1252, block T, have the honor to submit the report and plan attached, in conformity with sections 1 and 5, by-law 170, intituled "A By-law to provide for the assessment of real property benefitted by local improvements."

The following is a description of the real property which in our opinion will be benefitted by the proposed improvement, viz: A portion of the southerly half of Block N., composed of lots 584, 585; east half of 589, 590, 591, 592; the easterly part of 535, 1252 and 1251, Block T; 657, 658, 659, 660, and part of 661, of the westerly part of Block U; also 664, 665, 666, 667 and a part of 668, a portion of the easterly part of Block U, also 159a, 160a, 161a, and 162a, a portion of the westerly part of Block 2; also 423, 424, a portion of the easterly part of Block 2; also 164a 165a, 166a, 167a, 168a, 169a, and 170a, and 414, a portion of the westerly part of Block 13; also 406, 413, 416, and 429, a portion of the easterly part of Block 13

2. We consider the proposed improvement will be permanent.

CITY HEALTH NOTICE

THE ACTING MEDICAL HEALTH OFficer for the City of Victoria recommends that all citizens be required to thoroughly clean up their premises, removing all garbage heaps, decaying vegetables, stable manure, and night soil, and disinfecting all closets and drains as often as necessary, and generally to comply with the provisions of the "Consolidated Health By Law."

By order,
WELLINGTON J. DOWLER,
C.M.C.

Victoria, October 1, 1892.

EXTRACTS FROM THE "CONSOLIDATED HEALTH BY-LAW."

ACCUMULATION OF FILTH.

No person shall permit or suffer the accumulation, so as to be a nuisance, of any offal, filth, refuse, stagnant water, or other offensive matter or thing upon his premises, or on any vacant lot belonging to him, or for the owner or lessee of which he is the agent.

No person shall place on any land or in or upon any street, road, or highway, any manure or other refuse matter, or any dirt or filth which is, or is likely to become, a nuisance.

No person shall convey or cause to be conveyed through any street, road, or highway, any night-soil, swill, or other filth or offensive matter dangerous to health, between the hours of six in the morning and twelve in the evening, or at any time except in a proper covered cart or vehicle, so as to prevent slopping or spilling.

Every tenant or occupier of a building shall dispose of all animal and vegetable refuse from such building or on the premises occupied therewith, either by burning the same or by placing it in a proper covered receptacle, the contents of which he shall cause to be removed at least once every week.

No person shall throw into, or leave in or upon, any street, court, square, road, lane, alley, wharf, public enclosure, vacant lot, pond, or body of water, any dead animal, dirt, sawdust, soot, ashes, cinders, shavings, hair, shreds, manure, fish shells, waste water or filth of any kind, or any refuse, animal, or vegetable matter whatever.

DRAINAGE AND PRIVIES.

The owner, lessee, agent, or person having the care of any ground, yard, vacant lot, or other property where stagnant water or other nuisance exists, abutting on any street through which a common sewer shall have been constructed shall cause the same to be effectually drained into such common sewer.

The owner, lessee, agent, or occupier of any building or premises used as a dwelling house, hotel, restaurant, saloon, shop, store, office, factory, wash-house, or otherwise, shall furnish the same with a sufficient drain under ground to carry off all waste or foul water or liquid filth; and no such drain shall empty or discharge into or upon any street, road, or highway, or any open drain thereon, unless in the opinion of the Mayor and Council the same shall not be detrimental to the public health.

All vaults and privies shall be made tight, so that the contents thereof cannot escape therefrom, and as remote from any dwelling, well, or water tank as practicable.

OVERCROWDING.

No person shall let or occupy, or suffer to be occupied, as a dwelling or lodging, any room which—

(a.) Does not contain at all times at least 384 cubic feet of space for each person occupying the same;

(b.) Has not a window made to open in a manner approved by the Medical Health Officer or the Sanitary Inspector; or

(c.) Has not appurtenant to it the use of a water-closet, earth closet or privy, constructed in accordance with the by-laws and regulations of the City.

And every room in which a person passes the night, or is found between midnight and five o'clock in the forenoon, shall be deemed to be occupied as a dwelling or lodging within the meaning of this section.

SLAUGHTER-HOUSES.

No person shall erect, open, or use any slaughter-house within the limits of the City of Victoria.

PREVENTION OF THE SPREAD OF DISEASE.

Whenever a person suffering from smallpox, cholera, or any other disease of a malignant character dangerous to the public health, is an inmate of any hotel or boarding house, the keeper, or one of the keepers, of such hotel or boarding-house shall immediately give notice thereof to the Medical Health Officer or the Sanitary Inspector, who shall thereupon take such steps as may be deemed necessary to prevent the spread of such disease.

Every medical practitioner attending or visiting any person who is suffering from smallpox, cholera, or any other disease of a malignant character dangerous to the public health, shall immediately give notice thereof to the Medical Health Officer or the Sanitary Inspector, who shall thereupon take such steps as may be deemed necessary to prevent the spread of such disease.

Any officer of the Corporation may seize, and under the direction of the Medical Health Officer, the Mayor or the Sanitary Inspector, destroy any tainted or unwholesome meat, poultry, fish, or other article of food exposed or offered for sale.

PENALTY.

Every person guilty of an infraction of any of the provisions of this by-law shall, upon conviction thereof, in a summary manner, before the Police Magistrate or any two Justices of the Peace having jurisdiction in the City, forfeit and pay a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars, and costs if ordered; and if such penalty, and costs if ordered, be not paid immediately or within such period as such Police Magistrate or Justices may appoint, the same may be levied by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the offender, or such offender may be imprisoned, with or without hard labor, for any term not exceeding three calendar months, unless such penalty, and costs if ordered, be sooner paid.

THE BY-LAWS.

Fortunately for the city, the necessary three-fifths majority was given yesterday for the loan by-law to provide $25,000 for work on our streets. It is surprising that even 177 ratepayers should be found to declare that the streets and bridges are not in need of repairs, since the evidence of such need is exceedingly abundant. When it is kept in mind that money for the purpose could be obtained in no other way than by the proposed loan, the size of the vote against the by-law seems rather remarkable. We are not so much surprised at the adverse vote on the drainage by-law, for various reasons. A good many people were of the opinion, rightly or wrongly, that this work, like sewerage construction, should be done on the local improvement system. There was also a feeling that the proposed scheme had not been sufficiently matured, and that it might not fit in as well as could be desired with the whole system of surface drainage which is to be provided by the city. Even in face of these considerations the by-law secured a majority of the votes cast, though not the necessary three-fifths. If a smaller amount had been asked, to cover only the most pressing drainage needs, it would very likely have been granted. To speak of spending $100,000 in any manner has a tendency to alarm a considerable number of the ratepayers. The surface drainage, we suppose, must needs be done now on the frontage tax plan, the whole system being first designed as a unit, so that there may be no chance of its misdirection. It will be necessary when the surface drains are constructed to take stringent precautions against their being used as sewers or depositories for garbage. Some of the open and box drains are so used now, in spite of prohibitions. Though happily the most necessary of the two loans was authorized yesterday, it is not encouraging to note the apathy of the ratepayers, as evidenced by the small number of votes cast. The amount to be borrowed is to be a lien against the property of all the ratepayers, yet only about one-fourth of them took the trouble to vote yea or nay on the question of borrowing. The citizens must take more interest in civic affairs if they want to have those affairs well administered.

TWO OF A KIND.

It would probably be a hopeless undertaking to endeavor to drive into the Colonistic mind the idea that colonial inscribed stock is considered by London investors a better security than colonial city debentures. Such is the case, however, and if our obtuse contemporary will consult any competent authority on financial matters it will find it so. The stock is classed so much higher as a security, in fact, that we should expect to see it sell at a much higher relative price. Therefore the TIMES was quite justified in concluding from the success of the Toronto and Hamilton bond sales that British Columbia stock would yet be found to reach a higher price on the London market than it now brings. It is somewhat astonishing to find the Commercial Journal, which might have been expected to know something of financial matters, taking the same line as the Colonist on this subject. It commences an article with this remarkable deliverance:—

We have been surprised to notice the pessimistic view that is taken by the TIMES of the position occupied by British Columbia in the English stock market.

Here is what the TIMES said:—

As the Financial Times says, there is no good reason why our stock should not be quoted as high on the market as that of Ceylon, or even of the Dominion. That it is not is probably only the result of a market freak, which will be cured by the province becoming better known to investors. English capitalists will think more of British Columbian opportunities for investment as they grow better acquainted with them.

We may be allowed to ask how any sane man can interpret that as a "pessimistic view." It is, on the contrary, decidedly optimistic. Our comment was directly in line with that of the Financial Times, which apparently commends itself to the Commercial Journal: "The fact of its (British Columbia's) public credit being rated below that of the Dominion Government and even of Ceylon is a market error which will cure itself in due time." We further adduced as a reason for our belief the success of the eastern cities in borrowing money. This is what the Commercial Journal, with almost incomprehensible stupidity, describes as an attempt to "belittle the provincial loan" and an endeavor to "depreciate our stocks." The Journal may be "capable of making calculations," but it certainly does not appear capable of understanding plain English. Nor does its acquaintance with money market transactions bear any better character than that of the Colonist, which appears very poor indeed.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The bond given as security for costs in the petition of Mr. Morrison against Dr. Watt, the representative elected for Cariboo in place of Hon. J. Robson, is signed by Frank Barnard, M.P., and Senator Reid. The trial will be the first one of the kind in the province during the past ten years. It will not appear very extraordinary to those who know all the secrets of the campaign and understand the politics of Cariboo, that Mr. Frank Barnard, a member of the House of Commons for the district, should take such a prominent part in the effort to unseat Dr. Watt. The local member-elect received the opposition of Mr. Barnard in the campaign, and it is no doubt a mortifying reflection that that opposition was of no practical effect.

FROM NORTHERN PORTS.

The steamer Danube, Capt. Meyer, returned this morning from northern ports, with 12,035 cases of salmon, and number of passengers, among whom were the following: Mrs. Spencer, Miss Hunt, Judge Vowell, F. Green, R. D. Wilson, C. Arundel, F. Wollerton, R. Arundel, J. H. MacGregor, H. M. Burwell, J. Carey, J. W. Mogg, W. L. Jones, A. Stewart, A. Bremmer, Henry Rudge, B. Griffin, M. Duffey, John Dick, W. Scouss, C. W. Davis, A. Gilchrist.

The cargo was divided as follows: 3096 cases, Standard Packing Co.; 5303 cases, Cunningham's; 1836 cases, Lowe Inlet; 1800 cases, Alert Bay.

Most of the salmon is for the bark Martha Fisher, now loading at the outer wharf for the United Kingdom.

The Danube also brought down exhibits for the World's Fair.

Mr. A. W. Vowell, Superintendent of Indian affairs, who has been inspecting the industrial school at Alert Bay, came down as far as Valdez island.

John Dick left the steamer at Nanaimo. He has been prospecting for coal on Queen Charlotte islands.

The Danube's trip was an uneventful as well as unpleasant one, very wet weather being encountered.

The steamer Caledonia was a week overdue from up the Skeena river when the Danube left Port Essington. It was reported that she was on a sand bar near the canyon.

There are still 40,000 cases of salmon at the northern canneries to be brought down.

A party of surveyors who have been at work around the Skeena and another party from the north of the Island came home on the Danube.

CURE OF THE DRINK HABIT.

It Will be by Dr. Keeley's Celebrated Bichloride of Gold Prescription.

General Agent M. D. Roche, of the Milen Cure Company, is in town. Mr. Roche is a prominent Democrat of Omaha, Neb. He was formerly clerk of the Division Court of Omaha. Mr. Roche's present business is to cure inebriates, or rather to establish institutes where persons addicted to liquor may be successfully treated. Mr. Roche spoke of the Milen treatment:

"The Milen Cure Company adopt the treatment of Dr. Keeley. I am a graduate of the Blair Institute. I lost my position in Omaha through being addicted to intoxicants. I entered the institute and came forth cured, and with graduation papers. That is a month ago. I have never tasted liquor since. Not only have I never tasted liquor, but never have had a desire or craving for it. The treatment was thorough."

"Would you describe the sensations experienced during the treatment?"

"Well, the first thing done is to examine the patient and see that he is organically sound. If liquor has not played such havoc with him as to affect his vital organs then the work of "building up" is at once begun. A medicine is given the patient to take three times daily and four times a day for the first few days the bichloride of gold injection is prescribed. A person may have a desire for liquor the first few days. But liquor and the medicine do not agree. They are sworn enemies. The result is that the man takes one drink; and that settles matters, or rather unsettles them. The man is sick. He begins to have a detestation for liquor. Of course it is not necessary, nor more beneficial, to take a drop to see how it acts. But that is how it acts if a drop be taken. After a week's treatment the craving for liquor, which becomes an appetite in habitual drinkers, ceases to exist, and on the expiration of three weeks the difficulty, in the large majority of cases, would be to get a patient to take liquor. What I have told you was my experience and has been the experience of hundreds. If a man observe the advice given him and be not a "complete wreck" he must be cured. Dr. Panter, of Omaha, will be the physician here. He will arrive to-night and to-morrow we will commence treatment on three or four patients. We will be glad to have you witness the progress of our class. If we do not cure we ask no money. The proposition is a fair one. But before long you will see Victoria with several graduates.

THE B. C. MERCANTILE AGENCY.

—vs. Giles Before the Divisional Court—Judgment Reserved.

The argument on the appeal from the decision of the Chief Justice, refusing to dissolve the injunction in the case of the B. C. Mercantile Agency, was heard in the Divisional court to-day before Messrs. Justices Crease and Drake. Mr. A. L. Belyea, of Belyea & Gregory, for the defendant company, contended that a creditor has a right to deal with the account of any person indebted to him in precisely the same manner as if it were a promissory note drawn in his favor. He could sell or assign the debt to another party and that was precisely what had been done in this case. Moreover it was no libel for a creditor to publish the fact that a man owes him a sum of money, and if the publication of the "yellow poster" was not in itself a libel the sending of a notice of its publication could not make it a libel. As to whether the debt was due there was no express denial of the indebtedness on the part of the plaintiff, in fact there was a tacit admission that the amount was due, while Mr. Shotbolt swore to the correctness of the amount. Mr. Belyea quoted authorities, all recent, to show that as a general rule the plaintiff who applies for an interlocutory injunction must show that the statement or publication complained of is untrue, and that in granting injunctions in cases that affect not one's property, but one's reputation, regard is had to the injury that might be done to a man's reputation only in so far as it affects his business, that is to say, only "trade libels" were so restrained by injunction. In this case there was no threat to extort payment; there was simply a notice that if the debt was not satisfied by a certain date, it would be sold by auction.

Mr. Walls, for the plaintiff, contended that it was an attempt to extort money illegally. The defendant agency had not said to the plaintiff, "If you do not pay, we will sue you," but without even delivering an account they notify him that if he did not pay, they would publish his name in a yellow poster. By the Common Law Procedure Act, 1854, and by the Judicative Act, 1873, the court had unlimited jurisdiction to restrain the publication of a libel, though injurious to repatation alone, and as the publication of the poster would not only injure the plaintiff in his business, but would also hold him up to public ridicule, it was the duty of the court to step in and give him adequate protection until such time as the libellous nature of the publication could be pronounced upon by a jury. Authorities were referred to in support, and at the conclusion of the argument the court reserved its decision, which will probably be given in a few days.

The fine of the schooner Halcyon has not yet been paid, but it is presumed that it will be in a few days.

ECCENTRIC AND HARMLESS.

A Man of Education and Refinement Who Always Carried His Money in Gold Coin.

J. W. Conrad Cox is the name of the deceased, whose body was found in the Gorge road bush yesterday afternoon. Or at least a medical certificate, bearing date, "London, March 1., 1870," was found upon his person. This certificate was directed to J. W. Conrad Cox. An envelope bearing the name of James Cox and stating that that individual was the translator of 25 languages and the interpreter of nine and with the address 51 New street, New York, inscribed thereon, was also taken from the body. A receipt bearing date July 31, 1892, for $25 from Hitchcock's real estate agency of New York; receipts for installments for a $600 piano bought of Chandler of Brooklyn; a small medicine case; a bottle bearing the inscription "Campbell, druggist, Victoria," and a small pocket book with medical notes, completed the list of articles found upon the body. A 38 calibre revolver, self-acting, had fallen from the right hand. One chamber was loaded.

Engineer Thomas Atkinson, of the Deluge fire hall, Yates street, throws some light on the personality of Cox. Mr. Atkinson told what he knew to the TIMES:

"About fifteen months ago an eldely gentleman, apparently about 65, came to my house, 54 Pandora avenue, and took a suite of rooms. He gave his name as Cox. He stayed three months with me, leaving me about November 1st of last year. He was a talkative old gentleman and he told me much of his history. He said that he had graduated in medicine in London and was president of a homeopathic medical college in New York. His wife was dead. He had two sons and, I think, three daughters, living in New York. He claimed to own three farms in the state of New Jersey and also considerable New York real estate. He said that he lived in a three storey house in New York and had a gymnasium fitted up for his use. He came out west to buy property. He thought he would like the novelty of investing in a chicken ranch. He spoke about the chicken ranch so often that I concluded the poor old gentleman had a weak point, and that chicken ranching was that point. Often he used to drop into the Deluge hall and sit chatting with me, invariably ending by telling me of his prospects of being a chicken rancher. He had plenty of money. While he was at my house I saw him take out handfuls of gold coin. He appeared to have all his money in gold. When he left he gave me $1 25 to pay for his laundry, and told me that he would send me his address. No address came. The affair gradually wore out of my memory, until the article in the TIMES of last night again revived recollections, and I began to compare notes."

Dr. Watt, jr., held a post-mortem examination of the body. He found a bullet hole in the forehead of the deceased. He located the bullet. The bullet fitted the revolver that was found near the body. The body was in a bad state of decomposition. The flesh in many places was eaten away, and the bone left bare. Under the circumstances it was impossible to make a further medical investigation. The supposition is that the body has been in the bush several months.

The police hold to the suicide theory. They think that the evidence points in that direction. Dr. Watt, Engineer Atkinson, Phillip Chalk, who first found the body, and Policeman Abel, who went with Chalk to make sure that Chalk was not mistaken, were the witnesses at the inquest in the police court room this afternoon. The jury were sworn in, viewed the remains, listened to the stories of the witnesses, practically told as related in the TIMES, and brought in a verdict of "Suicide while in a condition of temporary insanity." The friends of the deceased will be communicated with by Chief Sheppard. The body will be interred on Thursday.

CITY POLICE COURT.

Whiskey, the Deceiver, Gets Men of Various Colors Into Difficulties.

In the police court, Geo. Bedford, Jack, an Indian, and Frank Gillis, drunk, were fined $5 each, or the usual ten days. John, an Indian, pleaded guilty to having a quart bottle of gin in his possession. Twenty-five dollars or three months.

Frank Calvert pleaded not guilty to supplying Sam, an Indian, with the liquor. Sam swore that he and John, another Indian were on the reservation together when Calvert hailed him, calling him friend, and asked him if he did not want to buy some whiskey. The two Indians gave $1.25 for a bottle of gin. Calvert after selling them the gin kindly helped them to drink the contents. John Baptiste, halfbreed, swore that Calvert received $1.25 from the two Indians, and went into the North Pacific saloon and returned with a bottle of gin, placing the bottle on the ground. Sam picked it up. Sally Baptiste, wife of John Baptiste, told a similar story. William Buller, carpenter, swore that Calvert and he were standing on the corner of the North Pacific saloon. They saw a Chinaman give a bottle of whiskey to an Indian. The giving of the gin by Calvert took place before ten o'clock, and the conversation between Calvert and Buller did not take place till afterwards. Fined $100 or two months hard labor.

FOOTBALL.

COLLEGIANS VS. NAVAL OFFICERS.

The return match between the Corrig college and gun room officers of H. M. S. Warspite teams was commenced at Beacon Hill, fronting the college this afternoon at 3:30 and should prove one of the most interesting contests of the season. The college team will probably line up as follows: G. Wilson, goal; C. Cartwright, A. Field, backs; H. Erb, A. Goward, F. Norris, half backs; R. Wilson, J. Macleod, R. Selkirk, P. Higgins, H. Dickenson, forwards; J. Ritbet, substitute.

Race Rocks Syren.

The steamer Quadra will probably leave to-morrow morning for Race Rocks with the new boiler for the fog syren. The old boiler will be brought to Victoria.

Theatre Car Service.

At the close of the theatre this and to-morrow evening cars will leave the corner of Yates and Douglas streets for Tolmie avenue; the corner of Fort and Government streets for James Bay; and the corner of Douglas and Fort streets for a Jubilee Hospital and the Willows.

Death of Captain Riley.

Captain John Riley, late of the schooner Otto, died at St. Joseph's Hospital this morning after a short illness. The deceased was well-known among the sealers, he having been on different schooners of the fleet for a number of years. He was a native of Glasgow, aged 32 years.

Struck Natural Gas.

Mr. John Dick, inspector of mines, who has been prospecting on the Queen Charlotte Islands, came down as far as Nanaimo on the steamer Danube. The gentlemen interested in the property prospected by Mr. Dick heard from that gentleman to-day. He reported that he struck natural gas at Port McNeil.

Bound to Prosper.

The Sidney Coal Co., has opened a yard and office on the corner of Store and Herald streets, for the sale of Wellington coal. Mr. T. G. Rayner, the well known real estate agent, is manager, and there is no doubt that the new company will obtain its share of the trade. Mr. Rayner will continue his real estate business in the new office.

He Could'nt Sabe.

A Chinaman to-day presented to the teller at the Bank of British Columbia a two dollar bill that had been very neatly transformed to represent a $10 bill. The clerk detected the change the bill had undergone and explained it to John. The Chinaman could not sabe, however, and he went off imagining that the bank had robbed him, whereas he had been duped by some outsider.

Officers Elected.

The annual general meeting of the Victoria and Sidney railway company was held this afternoon at Irving & Haywood's office, Broad street. The officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, P. C. Dunlevy; vice president and treasurer, M. H. Cowan; secretary, Robt. Irving; directors, Messrs. Macaulay, Brethour, Cowan, Dunlevy and Irving.

Bound for England.

Quite a number of through passengers for the Old Country went across on the Yosemite this morning and will go East over the C.P.R. They are: J. Robotham, J. H. Simmonds and wife, W. H. Downard and wife, Bertha Downard, Gus. Downard, and William Downard, for Liverpool, and W. J. Parks, Charles W. Parks, and Wilfred Parks, for London.

Delayed Newspapers.

Two bags of eastern newspapers, bearing date of July 9th, reached the postoffice last evening from Vancouver. The peculiarity attaching to this event was partly explained by the rusty appearance of the locks, indicating that said bags had been thrown aside somewhere en route and allowed to vegetate there ever since. People who have been somewhat mystified by receiving Toronto and Montreal papers three months old will find in this at least a partial solution of the mystery. Perhaps the fact that the smallpox excitement was raging at the time may account for the erring clerk having committed the mistake.

Important Steamship Changes.

The Puget Sound & Alaska Steamship Company is no more, except in name. Its accounts have been taken over by the Northern Pacific Railway Company, and it will be operated as a part of the company's system. The accounts have all been transferred to St. Paul, where the general offices of the railroad are located. The Tacoma offices will be abolished, except those of Walter Oakes, general manager, and G. G. Chandler, general freight and passenger agent. No other changes have been mentioned so far in connection with the actual workings of the line of steamers, and none are expected. The new office of post captain and superintendent, filled by Henry L. Jackson, will, of course, be maintained at Seattle.

THE INSOLVENCY LAW.

The Board of Trade Committee Has an Interview With Premier Davie.

The committee appointed by the Board of Trade to wait upon Premier Davie and ask his opinion regarding the insolvency law discussed at the quarterly meeting of the board, called on the Premier this morning. The Premier and the members of the committee exchanged opinions on the question. Mr. Davie told them that it was doubtful if the Provincial Government had power to enforce an act such as was wanted, but a similar act was in force in Ontario and it seemed to work well enough.

"A Creditors' Relief Act," said Mr. Davie, "was in force in this province a number of years ago, but it was always considered unconstitutional and was repealed, without, however, anything being said about it being ultra vires."

"What the merchants need" said the Premier to a TIMES reporter, "is an insolvency and bankruptcy law, such as the Dominion Government alone can give them. Any law passed by the Provincial Government would cause endless litigation."

THE POPE INQUIRY.

The Evidence To-Day Throws a Great Deal of Light on the Sad Accident.

The Pope inquiry was resumed this morning before Capt. Gaudin, and a large amount of testimony is being added to that already taken. Mr. John Pope and Mrs. Deacon, mother of the woman who was drowned, have charged since the inquiry began that they have been unfairly treated and that it is a foregone conclusion what the decision would be. Mrs. Deacon appeared at the custom house this afternoon and offered herself as a witness. Capt. Gaudin declined to hear her, saying she had not been summoned and was not at the scene when the accident happened. She claimed to have seen it all from the shore and heard her daughter scream. She left the room charging that most of the testimony was perjury.

Mrs. Jane Wilson, the first witness called this morning, testified as follows: I reside in Vancouver. Was a passenger on the Rithet on May 25th last. I was sitting in the stern of the boat and saw the row boat coming off towards the steamer. Did not see the actual accident but immediately after saw the smashed boat, baggage etc., washing around, and saw Mr. Deacon holding a rope and a life preserver. I do no not remember any couversation or shouting between the boat and the steamer. Could not say that I saw the small boat continue pulling until the steamer was reached. Thought the boat was in danger as it was blowing hard and there was a heavy sea. Remember seeing the boat lowered to rescue Mr. Pope. The time taken to do this was not five minutes. I thought the small boat was too far out in the current.

Mrs. Frances Herring, called next, testified as below:—Reside at Westminster; was a passenger on the Rithet on May 25 last. I was sitting in the stern of the boat near Mrs. Wilson, on the opposite side to the approaching boat. I did not get up to see them until the boat was close alongside, when I thought I would see them get on board. I knew Mrs. Pope well. The little boat was alongside when I looked over, and I smiled and nodded to Mrs. Pope. As I looked I saw the oars of the small boat go upwards to the side of the steamer and the boat carried towards the wheel. Heard some screams and being so frightened do not remember anything further. I do not remember hearing any shouting from the steamer o the boat.

Mr. James Wilson, superintendent of the C.P.R. telegraph line, testified:—I reside at Vancouver; was a passenger on the Rithet on May 25. I was asleep at the time of the accident and upon getting up saw the steamer's boat picking up Mr. Pope. From what occurred after I got up I do not think that any more means could have been taken to rescue the boat and occupants. Owing to the high sea and strong wind I thought that great care should have been exercised in not approaching too close to the steamer.

John H. Murray, of Westminster, was then called. He said: Was a passenger on the Rithet on May 25th. At the time of the accident I was in the cabin. Hearing some excitement outside I went out to discover the trouble. Saw Mr. Pope in the water screaming for assistance. A gentleman named Frank Reed threw him a life-preserver. He caught it and held on. He floated some distance from the steamer before the small boat was lowered. Should think the distance between Pope and the steamer was between a quarter and a half mile before the boat reached him. At the same time I saw what appeared to me to be the body of a woman coming out from under the steamer. She was floating in the water face downward with the right hand extended up out of the water. She appeared to be holding something under the left arm. She floated about 100 yards before disappearing. When Pope was picked up he was in the opposite direction from Village Bay. At the time I saw Mrs. Pope's body in the water the crew were lowering the boat. I could not say how long it took to lower the boat. I saw nothing of the boat coming towards the steamer until after the accident. I think that all assistance possible was rendered by the crew after the accident.

Isaac McMartin, a passenger on the steamer and a resident of Westminster, said: I noticed a little boat with four people in it. At the time the wheel was stopped the boat was about 200 or 300 feet off. When the engines were stopped the current was taking the steamer along towards Plumpers Pass. The little boat was still coming up to the steame, and was within 150 feet when the wheel of the steamer was reversed. She swung towards the little boat which was still coming along. The suction of the wheel running backwards and the current swept the boat out of my sight. I heard a scream and then saw a man pop his head out of the water. A life preserver was thrown to him and he took it. In a very short time a boat was lowered. I do not know who manned her, but the man was brought alongside. In the meantime I scanned the water to see if I could see any of the rest, but never saw the lady or child. After the accident I saw a portion of the broken boat floating in the water. I did not see Mr. Deacon taken on board. The steamer stayed near the spot about an hour or so, but found no traces of the lady and child. I did not hear any shouting between the steamer and small boat, although they may have been, as I was standing aft.

James Bennett, of Mayne Island, who was also a passenger on the steamer, was the last witness before the noon recess. He stated among other things the following: I saw the boat containing Mr. and Mrs. Pope and child and Mr. Deacon coming off from Village Bay before the steamer stopped. When I last saw the boat she was 50 or 60 yards off. The steamer was stopped at the time. The boat was off the beam pulling towards the steamer. Did not hear any calling and could not have heard it. The purser called me and I assisted in launching the boat. A little delay was caused in launching the boat owing to Mr. Deacon being taken on board at the time underneath where the boat was hanging. I cannot say how long it took to lower the boat but am sure it was done as quickly as possible. I saw Mrs. Pope come up from under the port quarter, face downwards about 70 yards off. She did not appear to be conscious. The wheel appeared to have struck the boat amidships. I believe that everything was done by the officers and crew of the steamer to avoid the accident both before and after.

At the afternoon session up to three o'clock only Mr. and Mrs. Robson and Thomas Bennett, of Mayne Island, were examined. Mr. Robson said he heard the captain call to the occupants of the boat three times, but did not know whether or not they would have been saved then had they turned back. Mr Bennett said the boat should have stayed back. The evidence is about all in and a decision may be expected to-morrow.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.

The Efficiency and Faithfulness of a Church Worker Pleasantly Recognized.

Last evening the teachers of the First Presbyterian church Sunday school spent a couple of hours socially at the house of Mr. Ballantyne, Rithet street. After several songs, Mr. Meston, superintendent, was called to the chair, when Dr. Campbell read an address, and Mr. Meston presented, on behalf of the teachers, a silver tea service. Short speeches were made all testifying to Mrs. Ballantyne's efficiency and faithfulness in the school. Mr. Ballantyne very appropriately replied for Mrs. Ballantyne. The address was as follows:

To Mrs. D. T. Ballantyne, by the Teachers of the First Presbyterian Church Sabbath School:

DEAR FRIEND:—Now that you are in a home of your home, which we hope you will long enjoy, we, this evening, do ourselves the honor of calling on you to add our congratulations to the many already extended. The true ideal of home is that in which two hearts are not only made one by marriage, but also united to Christ by oneness of religious belief. Such a home we are pleased to know is yours. How sweet is the word "home," the only place in all the world in which hearts are sure of each other; that spot where tenderness reveals itself without awkwardness or fear of ridicule.

The world hath its delights,
And its delusions, too;
But home to calmer bliss invites,
More tranquil and more true.

While in our part of the city you were a regular, painstaking, punctual and faithful teacher in the First Presbyterian church Sabbath school, and by your amiable disposition you endeared to you both pupils and teachers.

As a small expression of the high esteem in which the teachers regard you, we humbly ask you to accept these pieces of plate as a memento of pleasant associations in the work of the Lord, and a souvenir of the second of the three great events of life.

We unite in wishing yourself and Mr. Ballantyne all temporal and spiritual blessings which tend to advance your welfare, and prepare you day by day to enter the "Inheritance of the saints in light," when your sun here is set, and your course is ended.

Signed on behalf of the teachers and church, by J. CAMPBELL, M.A., Ph.D., pastor.

OVERCROWDED SCHOOLS.

Over Eighty Pupils in Charge of One Teacher at the Girls' Central School.

The Ward Schools Also Overcrowded—A Committee to Investigate the Matter.

At the regular meeting of the board of school trustees held last evening there were present, Chairman Hayward, presiding, and Trustees Richards, Morrow, Saunders, McKay and Lovell.

The minutes of the last meeting having been read and adopted the communications were taken up.

From Principal Netherby, calling the board's attention to necessary repairs needed at the central school. The principals of the high, girls', central and Victoria West schools applied for necessary supplies. The principal of the girls' school called attention to the overcrowded state of the third division of the girls' school. There are 84 pupils in the division.

Trustee Richards said the ward schools were just as crowded. At the Spring Ridge ward school one teacher had to teach 72 pupils.

Ald. Lovell said it would be better to promote some of the pupils, as the higher divisions are not crowded. He heard that many pupils are not passed up who deserve promotion.

The matter was referred to a committee of three for enquiry and report. The chairman named Trustees Richards, Saunders and Lovell as a committee.

S. F. McIntosh asking to supply a share of the coal used at the schools. It was decided to distribute the patronage among all the city dealers.

THE ATTENDANCE.

The monthly report showed a daily average attendance of 1534.50; actual attendance, 1821; average per teacher, 52.03. The report for the previous month showed an attendance of 1606. Last year the daily average attendance for September was 1389, and the actual attendance 1766.

Accounts for the month were referred to the financial committee to be paid if found correct.

During a discussion the question arose as to how long Trustee McKay had been a member of the board. Mr. McKay thought he had been a member for about three months. The secretary on looking over his books found that Mr. McKay had been a member for eleven months. Mr. McKay did not think he had been a member that long, but then the trustees had been fighting for several months.

RESOLUTION OF REGRET.

Trustee Richards moved, seconded by Trustee Lovell, that the sympathy of the board be extended to the widow and family of the late Trustee McConnan in their bereavement. The motion was carried unanimously.

Ten of the new maps recently issued by the Dominion Publishing Company were ordered for the schools.

WANT AN ANSWER.

Sewerage Commissioners' Attension to be Called to a Resolution of the Council.

Ald. Lovell has given notice that at this evening's meeting of the council he will move:

"That the attention of the sewerage commissioners be called to the following resolution of the Council passed on the 24th of August to which the Council has not yet received any reply.

"Moved by Ald. McKillican, seconded by Ald. Lovell and resolved that the attention of the sewerage commissioners be drawn to the fact that the corporation is not, and will not be responsible for any liabilities in any way connected with the sewerage works, including the contract with Mr. McBean and the Terra Cotta company, in excess of the sum realized from the sale of bonds issued under the sewerage loan bylaw 1890, and that the commissioners be informed that the Council desire them to place on deposit in the bank of British North America, to the credit of the corporation, sufficient funds out of the above loan; to provide for the payment of any sum which may become due to Mr. McBean under the terms of the contract, or the Terra Cotta company or to any other firm or persons with whom a contract or agreement has been entered into in connection with the sewerage works.

They Were Well Pleased.

Mr. Dixi H. Ross, the well known merchant, has something to tell to the credit of Victoria which everyone should know. Early in July he received a visit from a brother, M.B.Ross, whom he had not seen for 22 years, and Ed. L. Birchard, both residents of Pennsylvania. They remained only eight days, leaving to avoid the quarantine. The two gentlemen have travelled extensively, Mr. Ross especially so, yet in a letter just received here by Dixi Ross they say that they saw things in the little Provincial Museum, presided over by Mr. Jack Fannin, that they never saw before, and that bits of scenery between Goldstream and Sooke lake was better and prettier than they saw in the Yellowstone, Colorado, or the Columbia or anywhere else that they had been. They are, however, particularly warm in their praise of the museum.

Rampant Superstition.

COLUMBUS, S.C., Oct. 12.—A young white man named Balling, who died recently in Pickens county from kidney disease, claimed that he had been bewitched. A witch doctor was called in and it is alleged that he removed a number of frogs and lizards from the sick man. The coroner to-day decided to exhume the body and hold an inquest. Some of Balling's friends firmly believe that he was bewitched and vow vengeance against the supposed witch.

VIENNA, Oct. 11.—Emperor William was entertained at dinner this evening by the Imperial family in the little gallery at the summer palace, Schoenbrun. THE CLAIM DENOUNCED.

The New York Examiner prints the following:

Mr. Harrison's administration is distinguished by an unusually large number of foreign complications. In respect of several of the more important of these a policy has been pursued which, while thoroughly consistent in itself, is far enough removed from that which is traditional with us to give rise to the question whether our foreign policy be not undergoing some radical change. To what extent this change is observable in our management of several recent foreign difficulties, is the subject of a searching paper in the Yale Review by one of our most learned authorities on International law, professor Theodore S. Woolsey.

The question is one of drift. In determining the degree to which this process is going on one must go back to the beginning of our Government for the base line. Speaking of European powers and influence, Washington said:

"Against the insidious wiles of foreign influence, the jealousy of a free people ought to be constantly awake, since history and experience prove that foreign influence is one of the most baneful foes of Republican Government. . . . The great rule of conduct for us in regard to foreign nations is, in extending our commercial relations, to have with them as little political connection as possible."

The principles here expressed were the inspiration of our early diplomacy, and are the base line upon which to measure the angle of the divergence of our late actions.

First, there is the Behring Sea affair. As we have frequently stated in these columns, there are two questions at issue in this complication. One a question of jurisdiction over a certain body of water, the other a question of the protection of the seals. The two are radically separate, the second cannot be dealt with until the first shall be decided. Our claim to exclusive jurisdiction in the Behring Sea is based on the statement that prior to our purchasing Alaska from Russia that country exercised a similar jurisdiction, and that this right to police the seas was an integral part of our purchase. Now, as a matter of record, we distinctly denied Russia's exclusive rights in the Behring Sea when she asserted them. Our present policy has consequently led us to maintain the following paradox:

"Russia based her claim to exclusive jurisdiction over these waters on her ownership of all the territory enclosing them. Her claim was successfully resisted. We now own less than half the coast that Russia did, and yet are now found setting up the same claim."

CHINESE GAMBLING.

EDITOR TIMES:—I have observed that the Chinese lottery gambling vice is largely indulged in here by gullibles of the Caucasian races, and it is needless to say that their wooings of the goddess Fortune, via this method, are vain. They but demoralize themselves in their frantic endeavors and give the heathen interlopers ample opportunity to enrich themselves at their expense, and verify the o'ertrue saying: "What fools these mortals be!" But this is not the most shameless phase of the matter. The cunning gamblers secretly boast that they bribe the authorities to keep their blind side toward them while they are carrying on their nefarious business, and evidently their boasts are not idle ones. They conduct their swindle openly in many places, and assure their dupes that they run no risk of molestation by so doing. In many cities on this Western shore this phase of immorality is severely legislated against, and when the local press takes the matter in hand the local authorities bestir themselves to their duty of ferretting out and prosecuting the gaming swindlers, and suppress their vile games. This condition of things would obtain here if the press would do its duty without fear or favor. Mr. Editor, let us hope that such a crusade will begin at once. Yours for justice,

J. P. COOPER.

Successfully Docked.

H. M. S. Hyacinthe left the Puget Sound dry dock at Quartermaster harbor yesterday morning, and will be at Vancouver some time to-day. The wooden dock, contrary to the expectations of many, accommodated the cruiser with perfect success. There were several desertions at Tacoma while the vessel was being overhauled. The crew of the Hyacinthe will leave her at Vancouver in a few days for Halifax, where they will meet the troop ship Tyne en route to there with new crews.

The Prospects Good.

The Y.M.C.A. anniversary services last night were rendered attractive by a pleasing programme of vocal and instrumental music. Traveling Secretary Dummett delivered an address upon the association. The estimated expenditure last year was $3531. Two thousand dollars will be raised by subscription.

CONSUL SMITH.

His Reflections on Three Rivers Cause the Mob to Attack Him.

MONTREAL, Oct. 11.—Colonel Nicholas Smith, the American consul at Three Rivers, is confined to his bed with a severe cold, as the result of exposure through having had the windows of his house broken by indignant citizens because of his sweeping condemnation of the sanitary condition of that town. Col. Smith, in an interview to-day, stated that he had made an official report of what had taken place to the Washington authorities. Mayor Normand, of Three Rivers, to-day said that policemen were still under orders to particularly look out for and prevent any further manifestations of violence toward the American vice-consul; but no further trouble, he thought, would occur. The French press are mute on the subject, and do not offer any denial of Colonel Smith's charges. The English newspapers, however, all refer to the matter editorially, and demand the vice-consul's recall.

The report which was published in this city is that the French population of Three Rivers was greatly incensed over the statement alleged to have been sent to Washington by the American consul and published in the official sanitary reports, containing offensive reflections concerning the habits of the people of Three Rivers. The people were so indignant that the windows in the American consul's office were smashed. The row broke out late Saturday night while the consul was in bed. The mob numbered 2000. As soon as the first attack was made Col. Smith strongly barricaded every entrance and succeeded in keeping the mob out, but a shower of stones smashed every window in the residence. The police force was sent to the rescue and dispersed the mob, which gathered again on the public square and burned Col. Smith in effigy. In the early morning another attack was made on the house, but a strong cordon of police surrounded it and the intended victim escaped. The French Canadian press all over province has taken the matter up, and Consul Smith's recall is demanded. Consul Nicholas Smith married a daughter of the late Horace Greeley. He was appointed to the consulate at Three Rivers in 1889.

The Witness says: "One sentence in Vice-Consul Smith's report upon the sanitary condition of Three Rivers is a falsehood. It gives the spirit of the whole document a malicious tenor. He describes the cholera as riding at anchor on our seaboard. There has never been a case of it in Canadian waters, and on the other hand, it has had its home, both at anchor and on shore in the jurisdiction of New York for weeks. The dignified proceeding for Three Rivers is to meet each statement made by Vice-Consul Smith with a direct denial of it. It will then be time to ask for his recall, if, indeed, there is not sufficient ground for that in his chief utterances as to cholera on our seaboard. That is a slander upon our whole Dominion."

A dispatch from Three Rivers states that Archbishop Lafleche, as well as the entire clergy of the district, are much incensed over what they term Col. Smith's flippant reference to the church's position in times of epidemics. This part of the vice-consul's report will form the text for a lengthy pastoral letter shortly to be issued.

Deacon's Case.

CANNES, Oct. 11.—Edward Parker Deacon, whose case against his wife for adultery with M. Abeille will be tried on Thursday, arrived here this afternoon and took rooms at the Hotel des Princes. Mr. Deacon looks worried. He told the correspondent of the International Telegram Company that he feared he would lose his case, in consequence of the persistent efforts of the Abeille family to turn public opinion against him. Everybody who had shown him kindness, Mr. Deacon says, has been attacked by the editors in the pay of the Abeilles. This trial will be before a bench of judges and with a jury, but with the best of intentions they can hardly treat him impartially. In expectation of prejudice Mr. Deacon has brought here with him a dozen witnesses from the Rivera and other localities, where Mrs. Deacon and M. Abeille were together. He has his stenographer, who will take down the testimony of the witnesses as to the criminality of the couple. If beaten at the trial he will take the stenographer's reports to the United States and use them as evidence in a suit for divorce. Last Monday Mr. Deacon visited his eldest daughter, who is at school in Paris. While he was with her Mrs. Deacon called and was shown into the room. There was a violent scene, in which the daughter learned for the first time of the cause of the trouble between her father and mother. Finally Mr. Deacon ordered Mrs. Deacon to leave. Mr. Deacon vows that he will have his children, even the baby now with its mother.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Nearly fifty passengers were more or less seriously hurt by the collision on the elevated railway last night. Mrs. Hodkins had her skull fractured and is injured internally, and it is feared will die.

First Ten Months of Baby's Life.

For the first ten months of baby's life it should be fed on Lactated Food, if it is deprived of its natural food—breast milk. It is a grand mistake to suppose that solid foods are more nourishing because they are solid. Infants cannot properly absorb solid foods, as their organs of digestion are not fully developed.

It is owing to this foolish and ignorant system of feeding your infants that so many of them die before they are two years old.

When the baby must be fed with artificial food, use only the Lactated, and all will be well. Baby will rapidly gain in flesh, bone and muscle; it will sleep well, and become a joy in the home.

Bewitching Margaret Mather.

Margaret Mather opens her engagement at the Victoria Theatre to-night, presenting for the first time her, "Nance Oldfield," the one act curtain raiser, by Charles Reade, and also her new tragedy, "The Egyptian," the dramatization of Victo Hugo's "Hunchback of Notre Dame." This is Miss Mather's first visit to Victoria, and if any prediction can be gauged on the advance sale of tickets it is safe to say that she will be given a reception that will compare favorably with that given her in the cities of Eastern Ontario, where she is a great favorite, and where the college boys have often shown their appreciation of her talents by taking the horses from her carriage and dragging the carriage in triumph to her hotel. Miss Mather's work in the "Egyptian" is said to be marked with much genius; she is said to call into play all the tenderness of a Juliet, all the passion of a Lady macbeth, all the coyness of a Juliana, all the despair of a Leah, and all the pride of a Pauline. Her company is very capable and the entertainment furnished by the combination of "Nance Oldfield" and "The Egyptian" is said to be most pleasing. This bill will be presented to-night only. To-morrow evening Shakespeare's master tragedy, that is, in the opinion of some of the greatest critics, Romeo and Juliet, will be given, Miss Mather as Juliet. This will be a splendid opportunity to see Shakespeare interpreted by a real genius.

A Cincinnatian has a pair of 2-months-old fox terriers which are curiosities. While their heads, bodies and hind legs are all perfectly formed, neither of the puppies has any sign of fore legs.

A Really Interesting Will.

A remarkable curious will has just been published—so remarkable, indeed, that it might well be added to the already copious catalogue of eccentric documents of this nature. The testator was a wine merchant of Bristol, who left personalty valued at a little less than £16,000. He bequeathed one-half of his property in trust to secure an annuity of £150 to his wife during her widowhood, and directed that the other moiety should be divided into as many shares as he had children, for whom, until they respectively attained the age of sixteen years, the trustees are to provide "plain food, simple clothing and bare necessaries," together with a sound practical education at a day school or boarding school.

At the conclusion of their scholastic course the boys are not to have any payment made on their behalf, excepting such as may be requisite for teaching them some honest trade or handicraft, just as if they were the children of some workingman who had only left behind him a certain sum to pay for the education of his offspring. If, however, any one of the lads is found to display exceptional capacity for a profession, such as to give promise that he would gain distinction therein, the trustees are authorized to spare no expense in his training for such profession, and may even, if they think it desirable, trench on the capital of his share, but if any one child, owing to continued ill health, should be incapacitated from earning his own living, the trustees may apply part of the income of his share to his maintenance. On attaining the age of twenty-five years each son and daughter is to receive his or her share in the testator's property, the payment of which, however, may be deferred if circumstances demand it for another two years.—London Telegraph.

LOOKING FOR A LOST LEDGE.

W. H. Mulky, an Experienced Prospector on His Way to Queen Charlotte Island.

Mr. W. H. Mulky, of Baker City, Oregon, a prospector, who has worked in most of the mining districts in the west has been in the city several days. He is on his way to Queen Charlotte Island to look for a "lost silver ledge."

The ledge, supposed to be a very rich one, was discovered by Mr. Mulky's brother, in the fifties. The brother is dead. In 1887 Mr. Mulky, with a party of prospectors, went to Queen Charlotte, but on account of the lack of time, they were unable to find the ledge. Mr. Mulky is accompanied on his present trip by another experienced prospector and as they are well acquainted with the Island they are almost certain of finding the ledge if it is anywhere near where they think it is.

THE SECRET OUT.

The Means by Which Grant Brothers Were to Revolutionize Wrecking.

The Grant Brothers, of Tacoma, they of the mysterious wrecking appliances, have at last revealed the secret of their scheme. They use collapsible cylinders, which, aster they are collapsed and sunk are filled. It is something on the pontoon idea, except that the cylinders are put inside of the boat, helping to displace the water. They claim to have obtained the idea in a peculiar way, in fact, their story should take its place among children's fiction, along with Jack the Giant Killer and the Seven League Boots. It seems that when prattling little boys playing bare-footed on their dad's ranch in Ohio, a scow load of horses sank in the Ohio river. All the horses just stayed right on the barge and went to the bottom with it. Maybe the halters held them. Anyhow after a couple of days the barge with its load of dead horses arose from the bottom and floated about, buoyed up by the cargo of dead horses. When those prattling boys grew to manhood they reasoned that it was the gases that formed in the horses' bodies that brought the scow up. Here they have the collapsible cylinders which represent the horses, and a certain chemical which makes the gases completes the outfit.

There is trouble in the Grant Brothers' company. At first they had no money, and people who became interested paid them certain sums for stock in the company with the understanding that it was to be the working capital. The Grants took it and bought pianos, sealskins sasques and other luxuries for their wives, and now they want more money. Pending the settlement of this vexed question their chance to make $100,000 by raising the Ferndale off the bottom of Gray's harbor lies idle.

THE BOUNDARY LINE.

A Dispute in Prospect Regarding the International Fence.

There is the prospect of considerable difficulty in the country between the Columbia river and the Idaho line before the international boundary line between British Columbia and Washington is fixed. It appears that this part of the boundary between British Columbia and the States of Washington and Idaho has never been marked off, and as a result the miners who have taken claims are unable to tell whether they must comply with the mining laws of the United States or Canada. The delegation in Congress will be appealed to by the people of Colville Wash to give the matter their immediate attention, and the next United States Congress will be asked to order the survey needed. The country is rocky and difficult to cross, and it will not be easy to locate the line.

R. J. Reeves, who made the survey of the interstate boundary between Washington and Idaho, in 1873, for the United States, says that his instructions from the interior department were to run the line established by the international boundary about ten years before. He was told that he would find the forty-ninth parallel, the international boundary, clearly marked by a space cut through the woods sixty feet wide. When he reached the point where the clearing should have been he could not find it. There was no sign of any one having surveyed in that neighborhood before. He ran his line twice, but both times reached the same result. Then he took astronomical observations of the latitude and longitude and they agreed with his other work.

Being unable to find the international boundary or any mistake in his calculations, he went to Washington city and in the department of state investigated the original notes of the international survey. It was then discovered that the commissioner had never surveyed a part of the boundary at all. The country was wild and rough and they concluded it was not necessary as no one would ever live there. Now, however, it is a valuable mining region, just north of Metaline. Measures will have to be taken by the next congress to order the completion of the survey, after consulting with the Canadian government. It will probably take several years before the line is permanently established.

Clever Birds.

A gentleman tells the following in regard to the cleverness of two goldfinches upon which he kept a close watch while they were building a nest on a small branch of a tree. When the nest was finished he noticed that the weight of the birds and the eggs was too great for the strength of the supporting branch. The goldfinches also perceived that the nest would fall unless something was done and, after a great deal of bird talk, they flew away and came back with a stout string. Then they cleverly fastened the bending twig to a stronger and higher branch of the tree, and thus preserved their nest and its contents from destruction.

TARANIELLO IN COURT.

The Northfield Murder Investigation—Calico Ball a Big Success.

NANAIMO, Oct. 12.—The case of Taraniello, under suspicion for the murder of Cavallero, was brought up in the police court yesterday. A great deal of interest was taken in the affair by the residents, who flocked to the court in large numbers to hear the evidence. F. S. Hussey, superintendent of Provincial police, conducted the case for the crown. The day was occupied in hearing a repetition of the witnesses who appeared before the coroner. The prisoner all the time conducted himself in a way that clearly showed he was perfectly indifferent to the surroundings, although he took more interest than formerly in the hearing of the evidence. The case will occupy a few days yet, and the police intend to bring every scrap of evidence forward so that the mystery may be cleared up. The case so far does not appear to be in the prisoner's favor, although there is no direct evidence to bring the crime home to him.

The calico ball given in the Opera House last evening, under the auspices of St. Paul's Institute, was a brilliant success. The music was furnished by the Diamond City Orchestra, and was quite a treat. A lengthy programme was prepared and presented gratis by Mr. W. S. Perkins, which was not completed until 3 a.m. this morning. Never was a ball more enjoyed than this one was.

The funeral of J. C. Hardy took place to-day under the auspices of the Good Templars, Sons of St. George and Local Union of United Brotherhood. Rev. Canon Good officiated at the grave, and J. Hilbert had charge of the interment.

We are shortly promised a match under the Rugby rules between the juniors of this city, who are organizing a club for that purpose. The youths are fond of the pastime and some of them play a real good game. They will probably issue their first challenge to the juniors of Victoria.

SACRAMENTO SORELY SCORCHED

Flames do Great Damage to Business Property.

SACRAMENTO, Cala., Oct. 12.—At one o'clock this morning fire started in the dining room of the Roma Hotel on the northwest corner of Second and J streets. The flames spread rapidly. A number of citizens reached the scene, and tearing down an awning from a neighboring store, stretched it beneath the small verandah on each side of the house and caught over a dozen lodgers as they dropped from the second story of the building. They had no time to dress and were fortunate in escaping with their lives. When the department arrived a few moments later ladders were thrown up against the building and about ten more lodgers were taken out of the windows. The firemen worked hard and dragged out half a dozen more inmates of the building. Despite these efforts when the fire was at its height, and the firemen could not venture inside, screams could be heard coming from the interior of the hotel. Within 15 minutes after the alarm was turned in the entire hotel property was in ruins. West of the hotel corner was the office of Sisson, Crocker & Co.; this was completely gutted, although the desks and other property were moved before the flames reached it. Next was the plumbing establishment of J. W. Guthrie on the ground floor, and a lodging house above. These were also burned, but the inmates of the lodging house all escaped. North of the hotel corner, next to the dining room, was the storehouse of Baker & Hamilton. This building was soon in flames and baffled all efforts of the firemen. They could not break their way in except from the rear. They tried the latter place and finally obtained an entrance, but it was too late then to do anything but save that portion of the store facing on J street. An occupied building next to Baker & Hamilton's on North Second street, next caught fire, and the interior was rapidly consumed. Hall, Lucas & Co.'s splendid building came next, but owing to a thick brick wall the flames did not get in, and the building was saved. Louis Caffaro, proprietor of the Roma Hotel loses about $20,000; Sisson, Crocker & Co., about $5000; Guthrie, $5000, and Baker and Hamilton $20,000. It is believed that these amounts only partially cover the loss on the property itself. George Smith did some heroic work during the fire. He procured the awning with which a dozen or more persons were caught from the second story of the hotel. Afterwards he ascended a ladder put up by the firemen and entered the building, arousing the inmates, while the smoke was so thick that it did not seem that a living thing could breathe in it. The fire department never worked at greater disadvantage, owing to the northerly gale, the ferocity of the flames and the density of the smoke, which swept down into the street. No lives lost.
